TWIN FARMS

Welcome to Twin Farms, the intimate, all-inclusive country hideaway in the remote Vermont town of Barnard (population 947) where every season is embraced to its full wonder. Nestled on a sprawling 300 acres of forests, ponds and trails that make for a real nature getaway, the rustic-luxe haven is a late-1700s stone, pine, maple, and brick farmhouse and lodge that once belonged to Nobel Prize-winning writer Sinclair Lewis and his wife Dorothy Thompson.

Boasting a décor that incorporates a blend of American folk and contemporary art as well as eclectic collections, all presented in a luxuriously comfortable setting of lush fabrics and natural native woods, Twin Farms offers 20 distinctive accommodations, ranging from four large suites in the property's Main House to cottages built for two that vary in size and spirit.

The nature resort's dining philosophy revolves around the changing seasons, locally-grown herbs and vegetables that are available each day, and guests' dietary preferences—all of which are presented with the freshest ingredients available. Depending on the season, you might nibble on poached Maine lobster for lunch, or indulge in Cavendish quail and ginger apple slaw or thick beef tenderloin with bone marrow butter for dinner. No matter the dish, each meal is expertly paired with world-class wines from the hotel's cellar. Moreover, where you enjoy your meals is entirely up to you—in the rustic yet elegant Main House dining room, by the fireside in your suite, or packed up in a hamper for a picnic by the pond.

Taking relaxation to a whole new level, Twin Farms is further equipped with a fitness centre for the exclusive use of the hotel's male and female guests, as well as a spa facility, where you will find custom-designed treatments such as luxurious facials, exquisite multi-layered body treatments, and rejuvenating manicures and pedicures. The hotel is also home to the Furo—located in a separate building from the Spa, the traditional Japanese hot soaking pool has a wood interior, and its 104°F water temperature contributes to a relaxing sauna-like atmosphere.

Twin Farms' natural sanctuary also seduces guests with a wide array of outdoor pursuits, with bicycling, kayaking, paddle boarding, croquet, fishing, hiking, lake swimming, picnicking, cross-country and downhill skiing, ice-skating and tobogganing being some of the outdoor activities offered. Guests who prefer to stay indoors can explore the hotel's audio/DVD/video libraries and book libraries.
