british columbia, canada

WHY GO You feel completely off the grid in the remote wilderness of British Columbia, but can still dine on gourmet meals and be pampered by skilled masseuses.

WHERE TO STAY Getting to Clayoquot Wilderness Resort (from $3,640 for three nights, all-inclusive, WildRetreat.com) is half the fun, as it includes a 45-minute flight from Vancouver (complete with Instagram-worthy views of the Gulf Islands) and a 30-minute boat transfer from Tofino. Splurge on a Deluxe Outpost Tent, which boasts antique tea tables and vintage rugs, as well as modern touches like an en suite bathroom, Wi-Fi and a Thermostat-controlled propane wood stove.

WHAT TO DO Go on a wildlife safari to Cow Bay and view grey whales and sea lions, and in summer, spot bears along the shore.

MEMORABLE MOMENT Clayoquot's on-site helicopter can whisk you 4,500 feet above sea level to Cloud Camp, where you'll sleep atop your own private mountain and a chef will prepare dinner under the stars.

barnard, vermont

WHY GO No matter what season you visit, central Vermont offers distinctive charms, patchwork-colored fall foliage, snowy winter mountains and wildflower-filled meadows in spring and summer.

WHERE TO STAY Twin Farms (from $1,500, all-inclusive, TwinFarms.com) wins over foodies with lemon soufflé pancakes at breakfast, cold-poached Maine lobster picnics and candlelit farm-to-table dinners. Request one of the 10 cottages, which feature a screened porch, fireplace, featherbed and a jigsaw puzzle for you to take home as a souvenir.

WHAT TO DO Bike 10 miles downhill to the cute town of Woodstock, ice skate on the property's man-made lake, snowshoe or cross-country ski on the property's 300 acres, or explore nearby antique shops, covered bridges and general stores. When you're finished, the Twin Farms staff will pick you up.

MEMORABLE MOMENT The staff can arrange a private twilight canoe or kayak across Copper Pond. >>
